

day night in connection with the kidnapping of eight-year-old Giuseppe Longo of Brooklyn, whom the detectives had found in the tenement at 330 East Sixty-third street, Manhattan. They were arranged yesterday before Magistrate Tughe in the Fifth Avenue court in Brooklyn, and were held in $10,000 bail until this morning when Assistant District Attorney Robert Elder will take up the prosecution. There is another man not under arrest who the police believe did the actual kidnapping. The head of this gang, they add, still walks free.

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him. At the same time, with the exception of course, there is no telling what sort of evidence might crop up. The other of the two now sought is supposed to be the man who did the actual stealing of the boys and the Longo boys. He is not a New Yorker and may not be in this city at present, although it is possible that he is in New York that he may show up here within a day or two to look over the situation.

The Longo boy yesterday morning told the detectives all about the story of his imprisonment. He said that he was playing in the street when some one coming along was Mrs. Eddy and she stopped to take the child to a nearby picture show and asked Giuseppe Longo to come along with them. They went to the show and had a good time and then got on the elevated railroad and rode a long time. When they got off the train, the two boys, the Longo boy and Giuseppe, then took them to the house where they were found and they were kept in the room occupied by Maria Rappa. This man, the boy said, the police had not yet shown to him. The boy described himself as having a round face and as wearing pretty good clothes. When asked if he had been asked if he had not behaved like a gentleman, the man looked "rough," he said, and added, "I was rough." The youngster is 8 years old and has been to school for three years.

As for food, Giuseppe said he and Michael received bread and water and "those little things you put in soup." Once or twice we have had macaroni. Michael was taken to see his boy said the next day after the kidnapping and Giuseppe had not seen him since.

Maria Rappa, whom the boy knew only as Maria, went to work he said, and then he had to mind her two babies for her until she came back. He didn't know whether she had any money. The weather was cold. There was a window, but it was so high the lad couldn't reach it. When he heard the tread of the detectives in the hall he called to them to let him out, not knowing who they were, but sure the two boys were to familiar to him. Then Michael Rappa, his brother, who had gone along with the detectives, stuck his head over the transom and told the detectives the boy who was crying inside was Giuseppe Longo.

NOT HATTE LE BLANC'S PISTOL.

Salesman Says She Is Not the Woman Who Bought Weapon.

BOSTON, Dec. 9.—Many witnesses took the stand to-day in the trial of Hattie Le Blanc for the murder of Clarence L. Glover of Waltham and told of Mrs. Glover's displeasure with her husband and of her threats to kill him.

This was in line with the plan of the defense to show that the widow had the mental capacity to commit the crime, the testimony yesterday having been offered in an attempt to prove she had the opportunity.

One of the chief witnesses today was Thomas J. Coffey, who formerly was a clerk in a local firearms store. He testified that in March of last year he sold the gun with which Mrs. Glover was about 35 years of age, who was anxious to get a weapon that would "kill a man." He remembered the incident perfectly, because it was the first time a woman had ever bought a revolver from him. Hattie Le Blanc was before Coffey and the said agent, who was not the person to whom he sold the gun, she said the person to whom she sold the gun was Mrs. Irene Le Blanc Langley, Coffey's sister, said that on the Monday after the shooting she was at the Glover home and heard something move in the room where Hattie was to make hidden the next day. She also said that Hattie's glove was torn and she said she felt that Hattie said if she was convicted on account of Mrs. Glover she would kill herself.

Thomas H. Kyte, clerk at the Waltham post office, testified that Mrs. Glover had received a number of letters from the gun dealer, which were addressed to "Minnie" Ernest Clark, during a period of five years prior to the shooting.

J. Harold Gardner, who was employed at the Glover laundry and lived in the family residence, said that five years before the shooting Mrs. Glover used to come to the laundry to have her laundry washed. Gardner said Mrs. Glover told him that she and her husband and Hattie and they both cried for mercy on account of the length of time incident.

ALOHA BACK IN PORT.

Big Yacht Arrives at New London After Tempestuous Trip.

New London, Conn., Nov. 2.—Commander Arthur Curtis James' auxiliary bark rigged yacht Aloha arrived in port to-day at noon after a long and tempestuous voyage from Southampton. She is the flagship of the New York Yacht Club. She came direct from St. George, Bermuda, where she was forced to seek harbor a week ago to-day.

The Aloha started from Southampton on November 4. Four hurricanes were encountered in succession on the way across the Atlantic. Instead of sailing 2,900 miles, the distance from Southampton to this harbor, the winds blew the yacht far off her course and her log shows that she had covered 4,494 miles.

"I have been a deep sea sailor for many years," said the Aloha's sailing master, Capt. P. V. Bezanon, "but this trip was the roughest I ever encountered. When we struck the westerly hurricanes the Aloha made only thirty miles in four days. Some of the Aloha's topmasts and sails were carried away."

This was the Aloha's first ocean cruise. Capt. Bezanon says the big craft stood up well during the hurricanes and the battering she received proved her to be one of the stanchest yachts afloat.

DR. ELIOT ON SOCIALISM.

Milwaukee Victor Merely Expression of Disgust With Old Parties.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Socialism has no place in the United States, the ownership of property is too widely distributed, said Charles W. Eliot, president in exiles of Harvard University, who arrived in Chicago to-day after a two days' stay with Mayor Emil Seidel in Milwaukee.

"I do not think there will ever be a socialist party in the United States corresponding to the German organization," continued Dr. Eliot. "Conditions are different. The Milwaukee Socialists, notwithstanding the fact that they consist of the great majority of both Democrats and Republicans. It was a popular revolution against the corruption of preceding administrations which brought them into power. The majority of Milwaukee citizens are not socialists, but merely dissatisfied citizens. Those however, who disgruntled with the administration of affairs in their city."

Dr. Eliot expressed great admiration for Mayor Seidel and for the wisdom of his administration.

SCIENCE BOARD FEELS SECURE

MOTHER CHURCH DIRECTORS ISSUE STATEMENT.

Declare the Written Instructions and Directions Left by Mrs. Eddy Are Adequate for the Management of the Church. Glover Undecided as to Will.

BOSTON, Dec. 9.—The directors of the Mother Church of Christ, Scientist, assembled this afternoon in extraordinary session, the first held since the death of Mary Baker G. Eddy on Saturday last. At the conclusion of their meeting they gave out to the newspapers the following statement:

"The Christian Science board of directors, at its first meeting since the passing away of Mrs. Eddy, held this afternoon in the Mother Church, authorized the following statement, which was given out to the newspapers the following:

"The Christian Science board of directors, in a manner which would give every body cause to identify him as such, said: 'There is nothing written which would indicate that the man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him as such.'

The two men whom the detectives are still looking for are known to the police both personally and in their journals and papers because one of them is a famous man whom the detectives sought with bunting at the very head of the organization. They really scarcely hope to be able to prove his connection with the recent crimes as he is above mixing with them in a manner which would give any body cause to identify him